WHY COUNSELING?

As one might expect, infertility places a great deal of emotional strain on individuals and couples. Due to the complexity created by infertility, a mental health professional specially trained in dealing with the impacts is not only helpful but often necessary.

WE CAN HELP.

YOUR REPRODUCTIVE STORY MATTERS

Maybe you knew that you wanted two children - maybe you'd already chosen potential names. You may have envisioned what sports or activities you're family would be involved in. These are all normal parts of your reproductive story, the one you'd imagined in your role as a parent.

When infertility or pregnancy loss occurs, it can be traumatic and emotionally overwhelming. This was not how your story was supposed to be.

Counseling can provide a step toward healing those feelings. If you're experiencing guilt, grief, inadequacy, anxiety, depression, or relationship conflicts, we are here and we understand.
